Skateboarders

Dear Editor:

Just this afternoon, I saw a tall, young girl with long blond hair, wearing a granny dress, at the corner of 8th and Mission streets. She was riding on a skateboard, rather gracefully, I thought.

I believe Carmel must be a fine place for those who are skillful on a skateboard, but my wife tells me I am too old and unsteady for such exciting amusements. It must be admitted that my sense of balance is not what it used to be.

Some years ago, however, I would have thoroughly enjoyed tearing around our beautiful village, dodging in and out among cars driven, perhaps a little too fast or carelessly, by the mature, the old or the wise. Those who have lost the spirit of youth may have forgotten that they, themselves, might once have found thrills and spills in risking their lives on a tricycle, a bicycle or a motorcycle. Maybe those of us who are too old for such things should fasten our seat-belts, drive slowly and carefully, and be tolerant of the young who are seeking excitement and risking their skins among the wild-driving tourists in our village trap.

Chaos near?

Dear Editor:

To evolve a thesis of merit one must start from undeniable truths and facts. Thus the current breakdown of civilization needs undeniable premises from which to begin, such as:

1. Pre-social Man may be wholly individual.

2. Socialized Man must forego such measure of individualism as the tenets of the society in which he lives has adopted as its norms — the Ten Commandments, for instance.

3. Basically an enduring society embraces soundness of contract as a prior fundamental. Secondly, it recognizes that the law of "authority must lie with responsibility" as inexorably covers the whole gamut of Man's inter-relations on any scale from internal family to that of the vastness of State.

4. The honest analyst agrees with all history that any conduct at variance with the principles of (a) inviolability of contract and (b) Authority and Responsibility, is destructive of civilization.

A current case in point is that of the action of San Francisco's Mayor Alioto when the City's police union went on strike. Virtually, Mayor Alioto proclaimed the strikers' authority to set the wages that the City must pay them.

Having neither the money himself nor the municipal authority to raise it, he denied the authority of the elected officials of their city to fulfill their elected obligation.

Such tossing around of regularly developed authorities spells chaos. Do we realize just how near is that chaos which will bring us governmental destruction? We need such realization now.

Seaweed recipes

Dear Editor:

I am writing a seaweed cookbook and desire diversity in directions for delicious, delectible and darngood seaweed dishes. Surely scores of your subscribers are seasoned seaweed chefs.

My experience is short (scarcely spanning seven years): a shackling situation, sailing from scrumptious-seaweed-savoring Japan and sinking to a stark, seaweed-shunning scene in the States, signalled "Save the Day!" So, I began baking, roasting, boiling, even braising, broasting, broiling and otherwise building a store of seaweed succulence to fill-in a fluent-flora famished fare.

So Editor dear, for your readers please lend an ear.

Should you care to spare your fare, (seaweed of course)

And through my book it takes the air,

(With name signed there, to make it square)

Agreeing it's fair, a copy I'll share.

More power

Dear Editor:

In today's Pine Cone's "Peculiar Happenings," author George Herman avers that society and some "three billion" of us are all wrong.

That leaves only George Herman to be "one all right."

A distinction many have sought; few have attained. More power to Mr. Herman.

Chips are down

Dear Editor:

Am I my planet's keeper? Who else but you-me-John Q. Public.

When the chips are down each of us must be counted. Now is the time. We are either part of the solution or we are part of the problem. There is no in between.

What do you choose to be?

Pipeline EIR resolution defeated

A resolution that would have proposed the Carmel City Council demand a full EIR be filed by California-American Water Company before beginning the Canada de la Segunda pipeline and the Begonia iron removal plant projects, failed to gain majority support from the Carmel Planning Commission August 27.

Commissioner Gene Hammond's resolution failed by a four to three vote. Supporting Hammond were commissioners Roberts and Hill, opposing the resolution were Sletton, Neroda, Hughes and Evans.

Hammond proposed the resolution at the Aug. 20 meeting but it was deferred to the Aug. 27 meeting. The resolution was ammended to reflect the Monterey Peninsula Chamber of Commerce's decision to also demand such a report.

Several members of the audience spoke in favor of the resolution. Al Eisner, president of the Carmel Valley Property Owners Association said there was adequate information that wells already in the valley were creating "havoc along the Carmel Valley River." He said it would be "a spectacle" if the Carmel Planning Commission allowed the EIR process to be circumvented.

Edwin Lee who has a residence in Carmel Valley also argued for passage of the resolution and claimed the emergency status was not warranted.

"They have known since 1973 of the Inyou vs. Yorty case which is very applicable to the Carmel Valley... They have done nothing in two years. They have had ample opportunity to avoid an emergency which they have not," he said.

Ken McGinnis, president of the Carmel Area Coalition, began by stating, "I'm addressing a number of people who need to be informed including myself — and that is what an EIR is all about... nobody is getting hurt by an EIR and the delay has already taken place."

Virginia Merz of Carmel pointed out that the Public Utilities Commission had asked for public opinion, and for this reason had scheduled the October public hearing. She urged the commission to pass the resolution.

In addition, a letter from the League of Women Voters was read by Chairman Evans. The letter supported the resolution.

But when it came time to hear the opinion of individual commissioners it was obvious in which direction the vote would swing.

Neroda had not altered his opinion from the meeting one week before: "Are we so caught up in our business that we can go out seeking other bodies to spend our time on... Why are we so involved ? I see no reason why we are sitting here proposing an EIR... We're not in a position to do so... I think we should table this thing."

Chairman Evans stated that lack of water in Carmel would affect planning in Carmel but Neroda countered, "We shouldn't be acting on something we don't know anything about."

Sletton argued against the measure because there were "too many contradictory facts. I don't think we've got the facts and I'm not prepared to vote on something we don't have the facts on. "He added, "If this really is an emergency who are we to deny water to Seaside."

Hammond argued in favor of for the reslution for the same reasons. He stressed that the lack of information and the contradiction of facts were ample evidence that a full EIR was necessary.

Chairman Evans stated he could "understand the feelings of the people... but at the same time the filing of an EIR can take a lot of time... and controversy in the courts later."

Neroda moved to table the resolution and Sletton seconded the motion. The commission split four to three. Hammond then moved to adopt the amended resolution. The vote remained the same, four to three against.

Earlier in the meeting the commission discussed City Forester Greg D'Ambrosio's long-range plan for development of mini-parks, residential planters, and residential parks in Carmel. (Pine Cone July 10) Chaiman Evans outlined the plan briefly and it was agreed to refer the report to the Land Use Committee.

In other business a use permit to sell and serve beer and wine at the Little Beefeater restaurant on Dolores was passed, but not without opposition from commissioners Hill and Roberts.

Oncology wing opens at community hospital

Garden West, a new wing for cancer patients, opened Tuesday, Sept. 2 at Community Hospital of the Monterey Peninsula.

Located on the second of the four floors in the hospital, the 12-room unit will permit Community Hospital to admit an additional 720 patients for treatment each year.

On the same floor as the Radiation Therapy Department and near the Nuclear Medicine Department, Garden West is specially designed to provide constant care and close monitoring for long-term patients undergoing radiation therapy and chemotherapy.

Each room is a private room. As through the hospital, each four rooms is clustered around a patio. Every room has a view of the forest.

The rooms are equipped with computerized beds, special equipment for cancer care, and color television.

Garden West also has two conference rooms, a lounge area, a stainless steel pantry that delivers ice or 190 degree water for tea at the push of a button, and a tiled medicine room.

The nursing station is of a new open design for easy access to critically ill patients.

There is a shower large enough to wheel a patient into it. This is for patients with pathological fractures, due to tumors, who cannot otherwise be easily bathed.

Garden West was converted to an oncology wing from a section of Garden Pavilion, a part of the Mental Health Center. Those Mental Health facilities previously located in the garden West area have been relocated to Terrace Pavilion on the first floor.

In addition to the lounge, there is a quiet room for conferences so that doctors and nurses might explain to families treatment procedure.

The separate nurses' conference room is for in-service education of nurses by doctors who specialize in oncology and radiation therapy.

The computerized beds have controls located in side rails and imprinted with graphics so that regardless of language the patient can readily understand their use. The control positions the bed with 1,000 of an inch pressure. The bed itself may be moved with only five pounds of pressure. The controls have an automatic feature that permits going into the shock position, with head lower than feet, in just 15 seconds.

When the patient triggers and communication system to the nursing station, the sound system of the color TV automatically cuts off so that the patient can be readily understood.

Twelve cancer patients were moved to Garden West Tuesday.

Free school meals eligibility outlined

The Carmel Unified School District has announced the new eligibility scale for free meals, free milk and reduced price meals for children in the district unable to pay the full price.

The program is part of the National School Lunch and Special Milk Program and has been going on for several years.

Eligibility for free meals and milk ranges from $269 or less for a family of one child, to $816 or less for a family of eight children.

In addition, families not meeting this criteria but with other unusual expenses such as high medical expenses, shelter costs in excess of 30 per cent of income, special education expenses due to the mental or physical condition of a child, and disaster or casualty losses are urged to apply.

The meals are available to kindergarteners through high school students. Last year 185 students in the Carmel School District received free meals and-or milk, and school administration officials believe the figure will be even higher this year. The figure has risen steadily over the last several years.

Parents who believe they may be eligible are advised to fill out application forms available at the principal's office in each school. Applications may be submitted any time during the school year.

The assistant superintendent for business services will review all applications to determine eligibility.

Wastewater workshops

Public workshops on planning for a regional wastewater management system are scheduled for the Peninsula and Salinas areas on Sept. 10 and 11.

The Monterey Peninsula Water Pollution Control Agency is sponsoring these workshops to inform the public and to invite public evaluation of environmental, social, economic and political impact.

The agency has selected 15 alternative systems for public consideration. Agency staff and representatives of engineering and environmental consulting firms will brief the public and lead discussions on evaluation of impacts.

Fact sheets on the proposed system will be provided for all participants at the workshops and are available in advance from the agency offices. Workshops will be held in the City Council Chambers, Monterey, on Sept. 10, and in the Board of Supervisors Chambers, County Courthouse in Salinas on Sept. 11 at 7:30 p.m.

Voter registrar classes

On Sept. 17, the County Clerk has tentatively scheduled two classes of instructions for individuals who wish to become a Deputy Registrar of Voters.

Providing there are at least 10 individuals interested in attending each of these classes, there will be a class conducted beginning at 10 a.m. and the second class will commence at 7:30 p.m. in Conference Room 3N in the Courthouse in Salinas.

If there is not sufficient interest, the classes will not be held and those individuals applying will be notified of the next class date. Any interested individual, especially those who are bilingual, are asked to contact the office at 424-8611.

Testament for tomorrow

By GUNNAR NORBERG
Carmel City Councilman

Since coming back to Carmel from our month in New York, my wife, Wies, and I have been asked what plays or musicals we saw and what we thought of them.

Of the plays we saw, we were most impressed by the revivial of quite an old play — "Death of a Salesman." As soon as the limited Broadway run of the play was announced, it was immediately sold out for all performances. This was due to the fact that George C. Scott was cast in the familiar Willy Loman role, and he played the part superbly. He also directed the play. (Readers will no doubt remember him as General Patton in the motion picture of that name.)

Next in our order of preference is the play, "Same Time Next Year," in which the award-winning actress, Ellen Burstyn, plays one of the only two roles which make up the entire cast. The other role is played by Charles Grodin, but it is Ellen Burstyn who shines most brightly. The story concerns a straying wife and a straying husband who turn a casual meeting into a lifetime affair, which is a plot-line that could have been drawn superficially and obviously, but instead it was turned into a penetrating study of character.

An entirely different sort of play is our next choice — "Sherlock Holmes." This is the British Royal Shakespear Company's production of the play in which the well-known super-sleuth title role is played by an actor who brings all the authority and aplomb the part could demand. That actor is John Neville. Also gruesomely great in the Professor Moriarty role is actor Clive Revill.

Two other plays we saw were ages away in development from the taunt plotting of a Sherlock Holmes piece. The two were "Absurd Person Singlar" and "Hot L Baltimore," and we preferred the first, which featured three couples who come together in a three-part seasonal sequence, called Christmas Past, Christmas Present, and Christmas to Come. Both "Absurd Person Singular" and "Hot L Baltimore" are essentially slice-of-life stories in which writers sometimes pay too little attention to plot development of any kind. Featured players in "Absurd Person Singular" were Geraldine Page, Carol Lynley, and Fritz Weaver, and the play was a Theatre Guild production at Broadway's Music Box Theatre, while "Hot L Baltimore" was off-Broadway down on Bleecker Street in New York's Greenwich Village

Visitors to New York frequently point out that theatre tickets at reduced prices can usually be had for any given evening by standing in a unusually long line at the upper end of Times Square. When we first came into New York from Long Island where we were staying, we stood in such a line — and we did get reduced rate tickets, but our tickets were for a play — "The First Breeze of Summer" — which closed the night after we saw it. The only reason we stayed past the intermission was to try to understand the stupidly obscure intent of the playwright.

While looking at this most ineptly presented play, I thought of the fact that a local amateur actor of many years ago, was presumably nowadays in New York and that he had become known there as a "play doctor" — somebody who could take a playwright's play apart and then put it together again in a much more acceptable form.

That one-time local amateaur actor was known as Bob McMenamin when he was here, but he is now known as Robert Emmett in New York. When I phoned him, he said he wanted to be remembered to such local thespians as might have known him—particularly, he said he wanted to be remembered to Ruth Marion McElroy. He and his wife, Kim Hunter, were just leaving New York for New England, when I called. (He seemed — no doubt justifiably — to have been hardly aware of that dubious "First Breeze of Summer.")

The musical we enjoyed the most wasn't in New York City at all, but way down on the south shore of Long Island at Jones Beach. Again this was a musical which most readers of this column have seen somewhere at least once. The musical is "Oklahoma" and the producer is a big-band leader of many, many years' standing — Guy Lombardo. The Jones Beach Theatre is an open-air one, facing an inlet of Long Island Sound, and while New York City's temperature was in the 90s, it was an almost too cool 70 there.

The singers in "Oklahoma" were all remarkable, but the most outstanding one was Thomas McKinney who appeared in the leading role of "Curly." He said he had been trying to get to Broadway for four years, but now — here at Jones Beach — he was only 45 miles away. After the musical he appeared with Guy Lombardo's dance orchestra which was playing in a tent just outside the Jones Beach Theatre. There he sang show-stopping versions of Figaro from the "Barber of Seville" and the "Impossible Dream" from "Man of La Mancha."

In years to come I believe that McKinney will become a great figure both on the musical comedy stage and at the Metropolitan Opera.

My wife and I greatly enjoyed another musical, "Shenandoah," which starred John Cullum, who has a magnificent voice. Record enthusiasts may recall his singing in the musical, "1776." The story of "Shenandoah" is a most improbable Civil War tale, but that is quite irrelevant, since it is not the plot but the music which is consequential.

We secured tickets for a revision and a revival of a famous musical of many years ago — "Chicago" — because the star was to be Gwen Verdon. However — the day we attended — Gwen Verdon was replaced by a standby actress, which made the musical much less enjoyable than we had anticipated it would be. (I understand that Liza Minelli has now taken over the Gwen Verdon role.)

Critics in New York City were greatly taken with a brand-new musical called "Chorus Line," but my wife and I did not find it as impressive as those critics had suggested that it might be. The story simply has to do with a choreographer's attempt to find a certain few dancers to fit into a coming Broadway musical. However the lack in "Chorus Line" is simply the lack of any kind of leading character or star performer, and the off-stage directions and all the routine chorus routines do not make up for that lack.

Speaking of a 'chorus line,' the most remarkable such line is still that of the 36 Rockettes at the Radio City Music Hall. Nowhere is there better precision dancing than what is done regularly and routinely at the Radio City Music Hall.

We can hardly close a comment on New York with making a reference to its truly remarkable Lincoln Center of the Performing Arts. We saw the American Ballet Theatre's performance of "Les Sylphides," and found it most impressive. More impressive still were the ballets — "Sleeping Beauty" and "Swan Lake" — in which the great Russian ballet performer, Rudolf Nureyev was the star. A striking and unhearlded performer in the "Sleeping Beauty" was Frank Augustyn who enacted the 'Bluebird' role, and the world is likely to hear much more about him in years to come. Nureyev was performing for the National Ballet of Canada.

The mayor's report

By BERNARD ANDERSON

Those of you who have never visited the Boy Scout House on the corner of Eighth and Mission should take an hour or so one of these days to do so. The city acquired the property from the American Legion which had responsibility for it until three years ago. Since that time the city has repaired, rewired and refurbished the house. Not only do the two Scout troops use the premises but Cultural Director Frank Riley has made them available for other groups — ballet for one.

Scout troops in various communities have a way of experiencing bursts of activity closely resembling the ebb and flow of the tides. But in Carmel the caliber of citizen leadership has almost continuously over the years insured a lively participation by the youth of the area. Undoubtedly Pico Blanco, the scout camp located up Palo Colorado, has made much to do with scouting interest in Monterey County particularly. I attended one session last summer at Pico Blanco which at that time accommodated over two hundred scouts.

Carmel can be proud to have Scoutmaster Allen W. Gamber of the 8th Combat Support Hospital to head up one of its scout troops. He is extremely dedicated to youth activities and secures the respect and loyalty of all the youngsters in Troop 86. Hopefully we can keep him in the community for a long while. Rumor has it the military may have need of his services in Hawaii.

We are indeed lucky to have two Scoutmasters possessed with the leadership qualities of Gamber and John Martin, the leader of Troop 32.

My time this past week has been tied up almost 100 per cent with assisting the Carmel Lions Host Club at the Monterey County Fair which I assume all of you attended. The Lions have run a taco and burrito refreshment booth at the fair for over twenty years. The profits from the booth are used for various charitable purposes, chief among which is assistance to the Monterey Blind Center. This center serving the county is located on Larel Avenue in Pacific Grove.

I planned to skip writing a column this week but habit does ensnare one. After assisting in deep frying over 5,000 tacos, 3,000 burritos and some 3,500 trays of potatoes, you are inclined to let the rest of the world go by. One night at the Forest Theatre Guild's "Taming of the Shrew" in the midst of the fair activities was a relaxing night out.

I don't know how Councilman Norberg can find time to go gallivanting around New York City during our hectic summer months here in Carmel. But I've heard him remark that as head of a travel bureau he's trying to lighten Carmel's tourist load by sending people out of our fair city while the rest of us seem to be inducing people to come to hold down our property taxes.

Program for seniors planned by MPC

MPC is starting its new Learning for Living program for the community's older adults this fall and interested senior citizens can come to the campus Friday, Sept. 5, to learn all about it.

Senior Day activities will start at noon on the Library Patio with a lunch provided by Meals on Wheels Inc. for under 75 cents. Dr. George J. Faul, president of the college, will greet the group assembled. There will also be entertainment with concert guitarist Richard Spross, a tour of the campus and an opportunity for participants to talk with instructors and younger students.

Dr. Beatrice Siegel, director of older adult programs at MPC, said two new courses will be made available to Peninsula seniors during daylight hours in convenient community locations this fall.

"Topics for Senior Learning" is an introductory course where older adults can examine their own inner resources and the resources in the community which can be called upon to live better, fuller lives. Participants will be able to identify further interests which can be taken up after the introductory course is over.

Mrs. Siegel said the course is six weeks long and will be presented in four community locations. Arthur Carstens is the group leader at the Seaside Adult Center on Mondays beginning Sept. 8 from 10 to 11:30 a.m.; Sylvia Chase will lead the group at the Pacific Grove Recreation Center on Thursdays beginning Sept. 11 from 1 to 2:30 p.m.; at the Town house in Carmel, the group leader is Mary Jane Hennessey on Fridays beginning Sept. 12 from 10:30 to noon and Peggy Young is the group leader at meetings at the Janet Keene residence, corner of Camino Real and 4th Street, Carmel, beginning Monday Sept. 15. The first meeting will be at 7 p.m. and a permanent meeting time will be set by the group.

The other course is titled "Theatre of the Self," and is designed to allow participants to share past experiences through telling, acting out, improvising and other dramatic techniques. This course is also six weeks long and will be offered at the Agape Senior Center in Seaside on Tuesdays beginning Sept. 16 from 10 to 11:30 p.m. Lee Brady is the group leader.

For more information on Senior Day and other programs for older adults call Mrs. Siegal at 649-1150, ext. 451.

Fund drive short

Red Cross needs help

The Carmel Chapter of the American Red Cross, needs help according to local chapter officials. The fund drive goal for 1975 is $39,000 of which so far only $27,000 has been realized. Volunteers are also needed to help with chapter activities.

The Carmel Chapter is maintained by one paid staff member and volunteers. Mrs. Jean Snow, the paid staffer, explained that people seem to take the Red Cross for granted and think that it needs no donations in the form of money or volunteer service to run. "This is far from the truth," said Mrs. Snow, adding that donations are vital in keeping all the Red Cross programs going throughout the year.

The Carmel and Monterey Chapters of the American Red Cross work with the Monterey Peninsula Community Hospital in the recruiting of blood donors in addition to maintaining their regular bloodmobile schedules. These programs need money and volunteers to make them a success.

Red Cross programs include courses in first aid, swimming, lifesaving, and small craft safety through the instructor level. The training of the classes and the materials necessary also require funds and volunteers.

Carmel, Carmel Valley, and Big Sur are served by free Red Cross ambulances which provide emergency service to patients at no charge. These three ambulances, funded through the Carmel Chapter, need funds to purchase insurance, for operating expenses and funds to pay for the large amount of equipment to keep them up to date and within state requirements. Volunteers are needed in Carmel Valley and Big Sur to keep the ambulances rolling. Recently, the county donated a number of pagers to the Carmel Valley and Big Sur crews which enable them to receive calls directly and respond to emergency calls more rapidly.

The Carmel Chapter of the American Red Cross is located at Dolores and Eighth.

AMONG THE MODELS for this year's benefit fashion show for the Monterey Peninsula Christian Women's Club are: Judi Getz of Pebble Beach (left); Mrs. Kirk Hiaasen and Mr. Lowell Battcher (above). The luncheon event is planned for Tuesday Sept. 9 at the Casa Munras Hotel in Monterey. Jessica's of Carmel is providing the fashions.

Hadassah---Peninsula chapter grows

By CHRIS KELLER

In Hebrew the word "Hadassah" means "myrle;" it is also the Hebrew name for the biblical heroine Queen Esther. But for 340,000 Jewish women in the United States it is the name of a social and service organization serving the medical needs of Jews — and Arabs — in Israel.

The Monterey Peninsula Chapter of Hadassah began five years ago with a group of 10 Jewish women who lived on the Peninsula. Today the membership is over one hundred and the organization is thriving.

Ethel Wagner of Carmel Valley has recently been elected president of the local chapter and just returned from the national convention of Hadassah members held in San Francisco. She recently spent a morning explaining just what Hadassah is and what its members do.

Hadassah began as a women's study group in New York City after Henrietta Szold returned from Jerusalem in 1909. Szold was appalled by the conditions in which both the Jewish populations and the Arabs in the city were living in the city of Jerusalem.

Malaria, trachoma, cholera, typhys, typhoid, ringworm, malnutrition and the pox were consuming masses of people.

Hospitals, doctors, and medicine were marginal at best. Henrietta Szold had found her cause, carried it back to the small group of women in New York, and Hadassah began.

On March 23, 1913 the first group of Hadassah nurses arrived in Jerusalem. Since then Hadassah fund raising has built a number of hospitals, which include the largest and best equipped medical center in the Middle East today.

Through the years the organization has supported medical teams that have gone out into the countryside, established local clinics, and then turned them over to local residents.

The official goals of the Hadassah organization are three-fold, according to president Wagner. Members pledge support to America, to Judaism, and to Zionism.

Most of Hadassah's members are Jewish and most are women, although there are exceptions to both rules in the Monterey chapter.

"I'm no zionist and don't have a zionist background," explained. Mrs. Wagner. "I'd heard about Hadassah all my life but never really knew what it was all about or what they did."

But when she and her family moved to the area they found they missed their Jewish friends. The Jewish population on the Peninsula is very small, so small that there is not even a synagogue. Services are held at the United Methodist Church in Monterey, where Hadassah also meets.

Mrs. Wagner remembered Hadassah from her childhood and atttended a meeting. Her interest in the group grew and she was recently elected president.

"I would say our main goal is to inform our members of what is happening in America, in Washington, and in Israel," said Mrs. Wagner. "We realize that only in America would we support such a program in another country," she added.

Hadassah is made up solely of American women. It is not an international organization. A recent tribute to Hadassah's fund raising was the reopening of the Mount Scopus medical center in the hills overlooking Jerusalem. The hospital had been destroyed in 1948 during the war for independence but was regained during the six-day war. The entire structure was renovated and rebuilt with Hadassah money. Today it is probably the best medical center in that part of the world.

The hospital serves as many Arabs as Jews.

The organization also raises money to help settle immigrants arriving in Israel.

"These are primarily Jews from Eastern European countries who arrive with nothing. We try to provide them housing and with as much aid as we can," said Mrs. Wagner.

Young people who wish to visit Israel and work on a Kibbutz are given scholarships by Hadassah to do so.

The local Hadassah chapter meets monthly often with scheduled speakers. Last year at US Santa Cruz professor lectured on "Women's Role in American and Israel."

"For the past five years we've concentrated on growth. How we want to start working on educating our members the best we can," said Mrs. Wagner.

Q. Are there different types of Trichoperms for different types of hair?

A. Yes, three formulas have been developed to this date — Trichoperm 122N with an acidic pH of 5.5 for average and tinted hair. Trichoperm 144B with an even milder acidic pH of 5.5 for use on highly tinted, double processed or bleached hair — and Trichoperm 166FL with a pH of 6.5 for fine or limp hair. Various formulations of the Trichoperm System were tested on hundreds of women. In each case, after the perm, the hair was analyzed for condition, manageability, sheen, naturalness of appearance and length of time the curl formation remained in the hair. During their evaluations, it was noted that in many cases Trichoperm lasted longer than previously tested permanent waves. Therefore, under precisely controlled conditions, a series of curl relaxation tests were conducted to determine the extent of the lasting qualities of Trichoperm versus other permanent waves.

We believe you will recognize the Redken Trichoperm System of acid waving is different. The vital differences in this new warm-waving, low pH system will necessitate new thinking for the Trichoperm — the acid wave of the future.

What Carmel Needs (Editorial)

A BUSINESS ORGANIZATION.

The growing number of business concerns makes it necessary to have a body that can properly handle business affairs. No other organization can do it.

A GENERAL ART GALLERY.

One of the first questions asked by travelers who come here for a limited time is, "Where can I see the work of your artists?" They are referred to the various studios, search for them, often do not find them, and give it up. An up-town gallery, open all day, would be not only an attraction but would give an impetus to the sale of pictures.

BETTER ATTENDANCE AT ARTISTS' PERFORMANCES.

It is not right to expect the best exemplars of music, drama, etc. to come here, and on the night of their appearance greet them with a handful of people. If we expect the best we must support them.

COOPERATION IN MUNICIPAL AFFAIRS.

There is too much quarreling and opera-boufee stuff every time a new civic problem or improvement comes up. We need more cooperation between citizens and trustees.

25 YEARS AGO:

From the Pine Cone
Sept. 8, 1950

Jimmy Kelsey, one of the first active United States Naval Reserve members from Carmel to be recalled to duty, will report to the Twelfth Naval District headquarters in San Francisco September 18. Born and raised in Carmel, he is a 25 year old Navy veteran with a wife and a baby daughter.

Kelsey enlisted in February 1943, the year following his graduation from Carmel High School He was in active service for three years, including 29 months overseas in the North and South Pacific islands, and was boatswain's mate, third class, when discharged in 1946 with two battle stars.

Despite a loss of girl students to the new Santa Catalina School, high school enrollment is up this year eight students with more expected. Last year, 288; to date this year, 296. Grade school shows a more marked increase with a total of 500 registered so far at Sunset and Woods Schools, 25 over last year.

All three kindergarten classes are now filled, Principal Arthur Hull says, and any new enrollees will have to go on a waiting list.

10 YEARS AGO:

From the Pine Cone
Sept. 9, 1965

Last night, the city council directed City Attorney William Burleigh to undertake preliminary exploration of grounds for a referendum or other suitable action to stop Humble Oil and Refining Company from building and operating an oil refinery at Moss Landing.

Basis for this research will be that the Monterey County Board of Supervisors took legislative action, subject to referendum, when granting Humble Oil a special permit for the refinery on September 2.

Mr. Burleigh told the council that members of the board of supervisors had said that they were taking legislative action. His preliminary explorations of possible grounds to halt Humble Oil should be completed conditions to be imposed on the permit which was approved last Friday, the Council decided.

The Citizens' Committee to study Financial Problems of the Carmel Unified School District was officially established last night when the board of trustees, with Clayton Neill Jr. and Steven Sasoon abset, approved a list of members compiled by trustees and the administration after several months of deliberation.

Wah Ming Chang

Now designing for himself

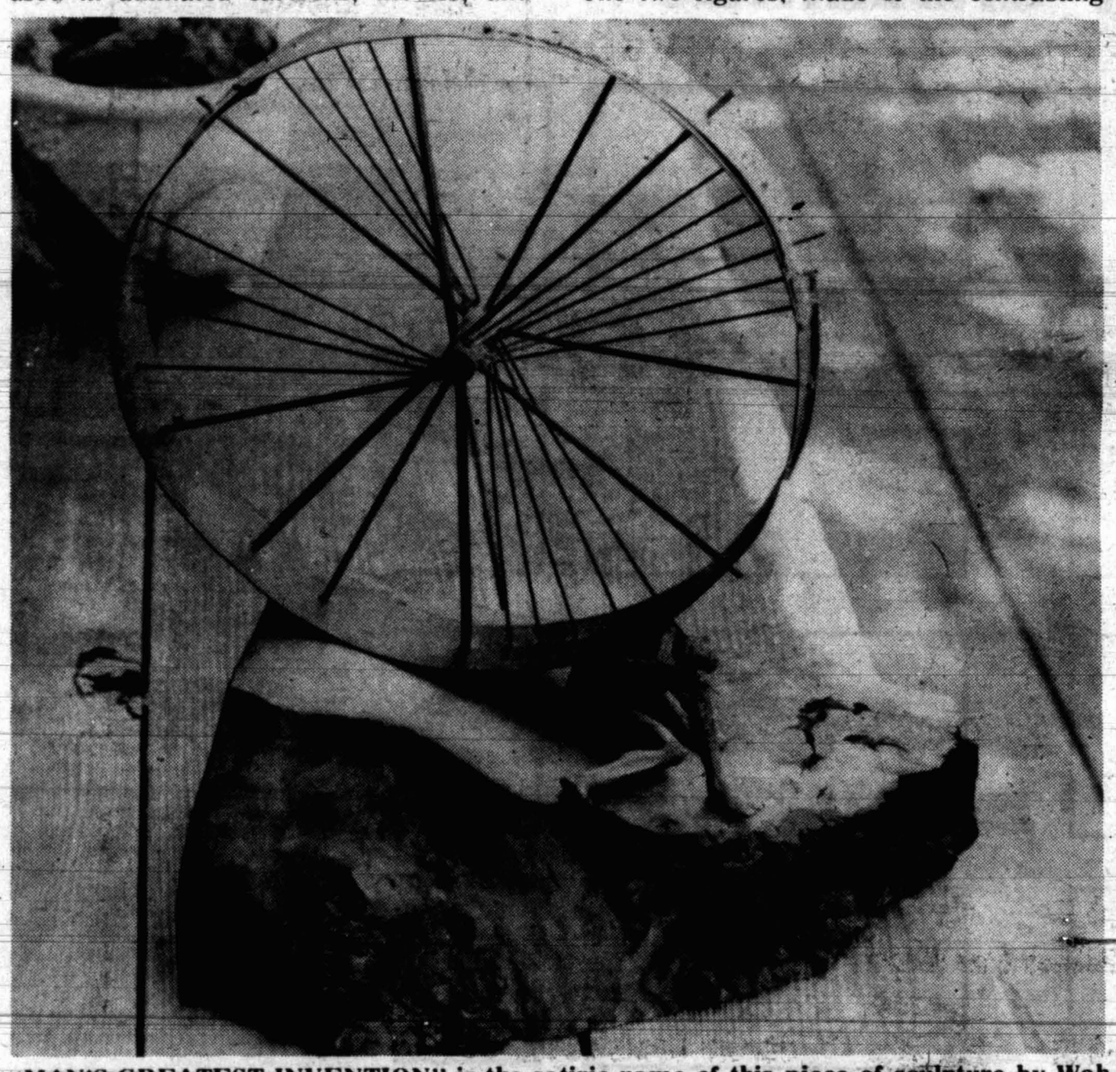
Wah Ming Chang has been responsible for creating Walt Disney's "Bambi," Liz Taylor's headress for her role in "Cleopatra," and an endless number of monster men for the "Star Trek" televison series. And that's just for a start.

Chang, who has resided in Carmel Valley since 1970, will display a number of bronze and wood sculptures at the Seaside City Hall during the month of September. Along with these displays will be examples of his previous work — puppets and dinosaurs used in animated cartoons, movies, and television programs.

The sculptures include realistic designs of animals and people. He has done a series which he calls his "endangered species" series. It includes small lifelike statues of bears, pelicans, sea otters, wolves, zebras koala bears and eagles. The series is sold in various galleries across the country.

The exhibit will also include a number of more abstract pieces. One particularly outstanding piece is a combination walnut-bronze design of two humans in an embrace. The two figures, made of the contrasting materials, fit together perfectly to form one sculpture.

BEFORE SETTLING IN Carmel Valley five years ago, artist Wah Chang was the creator of puppets for animated films. Those above are from the film "The Wonderful World of the Brothers Grimm."



"MAN'S GREATEST INVENTION" is the satiric name of this piece of sculpture by Wah Chang.

Chang has become the versatile artist he is after a life-long interest in art. Born in Honolulu, Hawaii in 1917 he moved to San Francisco when he was two years old. Both parents were artists and Chang himself, at the tender age of ten years, was having exhibitions of his etchings and block printing at the Palace of Legion of Honor.

As a high school student in Los Angeles he began making puppets and several years later was responsible for the animated cartoon characters of Pinocchio, Bambi, and the assorted fairies and witches sprinkled throughout the Gimms' Fairy Tales.

His puppets were sturdy little characters whose bodies were able to bend practically all over.

"Through the use of balls and sockets we were able to construct them so they could be moved for each frame," he explained. "There are 24 frames to a second of film, so that means an action that takes one second take 24 different pictures.

His dwarfs and ghouls also sported various plastic face masks that could be popped on and off the puppet's skull to show various facial expressions.

Chang pointed to a photograph of a double row of masks of the same face but with the mouth in varying degrees of openess. "We made all those in order to film a yawn," he explained.

Some of his puppets were merely skeletons, developed to aid the animations which were drawn by the artists. A number of others however were filmed directly.

A Saturday morning television program called "The Land of the Lost" is using the same dinosaurs Chang designed a number of years ago.

Along with two partners, Chang worked on a number of pictures requiring special effects such as "Tom Thumb," "Jack the Giant Killer," "The Seven Faces of Dr. Lao," "The Wonderful World of the Brothers Grimm" and "The Time Machine" for which they received two Academy Awards.

But since moving away from Hollywood his emphasis has changed somewhat. He has made a number of educational films including one called "Otters, Clowns of the Sea." The film has been shown on local television stations and in schools.

OUR SEARCH FOR WILDERNESS by C. Edward Graves and Emily Graves (Exposition Press $8)

It's fashionable now to go back to the land, to scrape together enough money to buy an abandoned farm in Idaho or Oregon and then to try to make a living on it. And it's respectable to camp in a wheeled box complete with toilet, refrigerator, and portable Sony because, after all, the wilderness is a nice place to visit, but who wants to listen to it?

Well, some do and as living space becomes increasingly crowded, more will. Throughout their long and apparently satisfying marriage Edward and Emily Graves have been sustained by their visits to the wilderness areas of this continent. Their love for these places has caused them to become active conservationists; they've seen the wilderness when it was wilder than it is now, and their efforts have helped to maintain, sometimes to extend, its limits. There's an elegiac tone to their book, and a detachment, and this is too bad: it would've been interesting to have more than these glimpses of people who could've "lost two months' salary" in order to take a lake honeymoon, and who spent their 15th anniverary running the Rogue River. It's one of life's inequities that people with full ives wait too long to write their books.

—Richard Webster

THE HOUSE ON QUAI NOTRE DAME by Georges Simenon (Harcourt Brace Jovanovich $6.95)

Quantity and quality needn't be mutually exclusive terms. Simeonon's a writer's writer — Gide and Eliot were among his fans — and something of a one man industry: previously capable of producing 12 or more books yearly, he now, in his seventies, settles for 3 or 4. This year's harvest includes a detective story about Inspector Maigret, a cookbook, and another of those inventions which seem totally real, those "psychological novels" which are slices of live with no fat on them.

The uncle of a family in provincial France dies; his young widow immediately attempts suicide and is bundled off to a nursing home. The relatives are scandalized, then bewildered when it appears that the old man killed himself. Why should he have? He was the family's great man, an international lawyer, the bright ambitious child for whom earlier generations sacrificed themselves. But now that he is dead and no longer to be applied for advice, money, jobs, the main question is who will inherit? The various branches of the family, previously indifferent to one another, now converge to plan the funeral, to jockey for power, and to wait for the reading of that will. Among them is a nephew, a drawing teacher at the local art school; his affluence is due to his wife's protector, and he knows that he himself is a small town bourgeois, a mediocrity whose only real talent lies in his ability to be cautious, to be accommodating. And yet he sees parallels between his uncle's life and his own, convinces himself that he understands the uncle's death. The problem is, do we?

THE MUSIC CORNER

By IRVING W. GREENBERG

NEW RECORDINGS

BEETHOVEN: SYMPHONY NO. 9 (CHORAL) (Soloists, Ambrosian Singers, New Philharmonia Orchestra conducted by Seiji Ozawa — Philips 6747.119 — 2 discs).

Beethoven's last symphony — No. 9 in D minor, Op. 125 — calls for chorus and vocal soloists in the last movement, which is why this work is designated as the Choral Symphony. No symphony took Beethoven so long to write, and none cost him so much mental anguish and creative struggle. It proved his most monumental creation within the symphonic mold, a work that he flooded with humanity and compassion. The premiere took place in Vienna on May 7, 1824, under the composer's direction, an occasion that was one of the most poignant incidents in the life of the composer. He was now completely deaf, incapable of hearing the music that he was conducting. At the end of the performance Beethoven, a few measures off, continued to beat time. This tragic episode sent an electric current through the audience, which, after a momentary hush, exploded into an ovation. One of the soloists had to turn the deaf composer around to acknowledge the tribute.

The text of the finale was the poetic idea that set Beethoven's creative imagination aflame, and made him seek out in all of the four movements an even profounder strain of feeling and thought. The text was by Schiller, the "Ode to Joy," a stirring paean to the brotherhood of man. For over a quarter of a century Beethoven had hoped to provide it with a musical setting.

The symphony opens with an air of mystery. Some of the thematic material is proud and defiant, others are resigned or suppliant. In both, the involved exposition and the titanic development there is a struggle of epic dimensions. Sometimes there is a premonition of defeat, but usually the spirit is triumphant. Beethoven alters usual procedures by placing the scherzo movement before the slow one. An exultant mood is at once projected, and the joyous character of the movement as a whole is clearly evident.

The slow movement is surely one of the noblest pages in any Beethoven symphony. Two important melodies, one gentle and reflective; and the other, radiant and spiritual, are heard. Only a mighty tribute to joy and to the highest aspirations of man could fittingly follow music poised on such a plan of sublimity. And it is at this point that Beethoven finally found a place for Schiller's "Ode to Joy." A new melody, softly intoned, interrupted by the stern exhortation of the baritone. Baritone solo, vocal quartet, then full orchestra now offer the song of joy, previously suggested by the strings. This is the heart of the finale. This melody is subjected to variations, extensions, repetitions; it becomes now martial, now religious, and now exultant.

For this new recording of the Beethoven Ninth Symphony, Seiji Ozawa has assembled a stellar cast of vocalists: Marita Napier, soprano; Anna Reynolds, mezzo-soprano; Helge Brilioth, tenor, and Karl Ridderbusch, bass.

These soloists perform in the final movement Beethoven's setting to Schiller's "Ode to Joy" with grandeur, dignity, musical expressiveness and tonal brilliance. The composer's demands on the human voice are very cruel and unrelenting, but these soloists overcome all obstacles in giving a performance of extreme sensitivity, and highly-inflected tonal coloration and intonation. Equally well and powerful is the singing of the Ambrosian Singers, who, in complete rapport with both the soloists and the orchestra, project with lucidity, warmth, and intonative majesty.

The Orchestra plays superbly, being absolutely responsive to every cue from Ozawa, and thus the whole performance achieves a harmonious relationship. The certain magnetism in Ozawa's reading of this work brings out not only the basic essential musical contours, but does so with spirit, authority, and erudition.

The surfaces are exquisite in their quietness; the sound is wonderfully sonorous. This disc, though running into stiff competition from recent recording by Solti, is still highly recommended as definitive, because of its multi-faceted elements present in the absolutely balanced performance.

J.S. BACH: ST. MATTHEW PASSION, BWV 244 (Soloists, Amsterdam Toonkunst Choir, Concertgebow Orchestra of Amsterdam conducted by Willem Mengelberg-Philips 6747.168 — 3 discs).

The text of this work is mainly by Christian Friederich Hinrici, derived from the 26th and 27th, chapters of St. Matthew. In contrast to the St. John Passion, the present work is not essentially dramatic, but is poised on a high spiritual plane; it is mostly devotional and reflective. The lyrical solo passages rather than the choruses are emphasized. Especially noble are such remarkable melodic passages as the alto aria "Buss' und Reu;'" the soprano aria, "Blute nur;" the tenor recitative with chorus "O Schmerz;" the contralto aria with violin obbligato "Erbarme dich, mein Gott;" and the soprano aria "Aus Liebe, will mein Heiland sterben." The choruses are also generally more emotional and affecting than stirring (even though a few, like the stirring "Barabbas" have a powerful dramatic impulse).

The most eloquent choruses are: the funereal opening "Kommt, ihr Toechter;" the poignant "O Mensch bewein' deine Suende gross," with which the first part comes to a conclusion; and the moving closing chorus, sometimes described as the most poignant lullaby ever written "Wir setzen uns mit Traenen nieder."

One way in which Bach highlighted the exalted feeling of the St. Matthew Passion was by endowing the recitatives of Christ with orchestral accompaniments, while in the St. John Passion these, like all other recitatives, are accompanied only by the chords of a keyboard instrument.

The St. Matthew Passion is in two contrasting sections. The first is tender and contemplative; the second, tragic. In the first is described the conspiracy of the scribes and the priests, Christ's annointment in the house of Simon, the Last Supper, the Agony in the Garden, and the Betrayal. In the second part, unfold the scene before Caiaphas, Peter's denial, the judgement of Pontius Pilate, the death of Judas, the march to Golgotha, and the final Crucifixion and death of Jesus.

This is a "live" recording of the performance of the St. Matthew Passion on Palm Sunday, 1939, and it serves merely as a musical document of historical significance. It must be assumed that this recording also has a nostalgic value, since it was the last time that this work was performed in a free Holland, before night closed in with the Nazi occupation, and which was not resumed till the liberation in 1945 by the Allies. In the meantime, the conductor Willem Mendelberg, had actively collaborated with the Nazi and he was forced by public opinion into permanent retirement in Switzerland after the liberation in 1945.

The soloists, Chorus, Boys' Choir and the Orchestra are unquestionably first rate, but the sound coming through is muffled, and it certainly cannot be compared with modern recordings of this work. It has validity only in a limited sense, insofar as it afford a comparative interpretation of the musical ideas, as of 1939 as against more recent ones.

Strangely enough, the surfaces are still quite good, but here and there, there are ticks and clicks, which shows the age of the recording, and its transfer from the shellac.

"A Flying Person over San Francisco Bay," by Ted Organ will be exhibited at the Friends of Photography gallery.

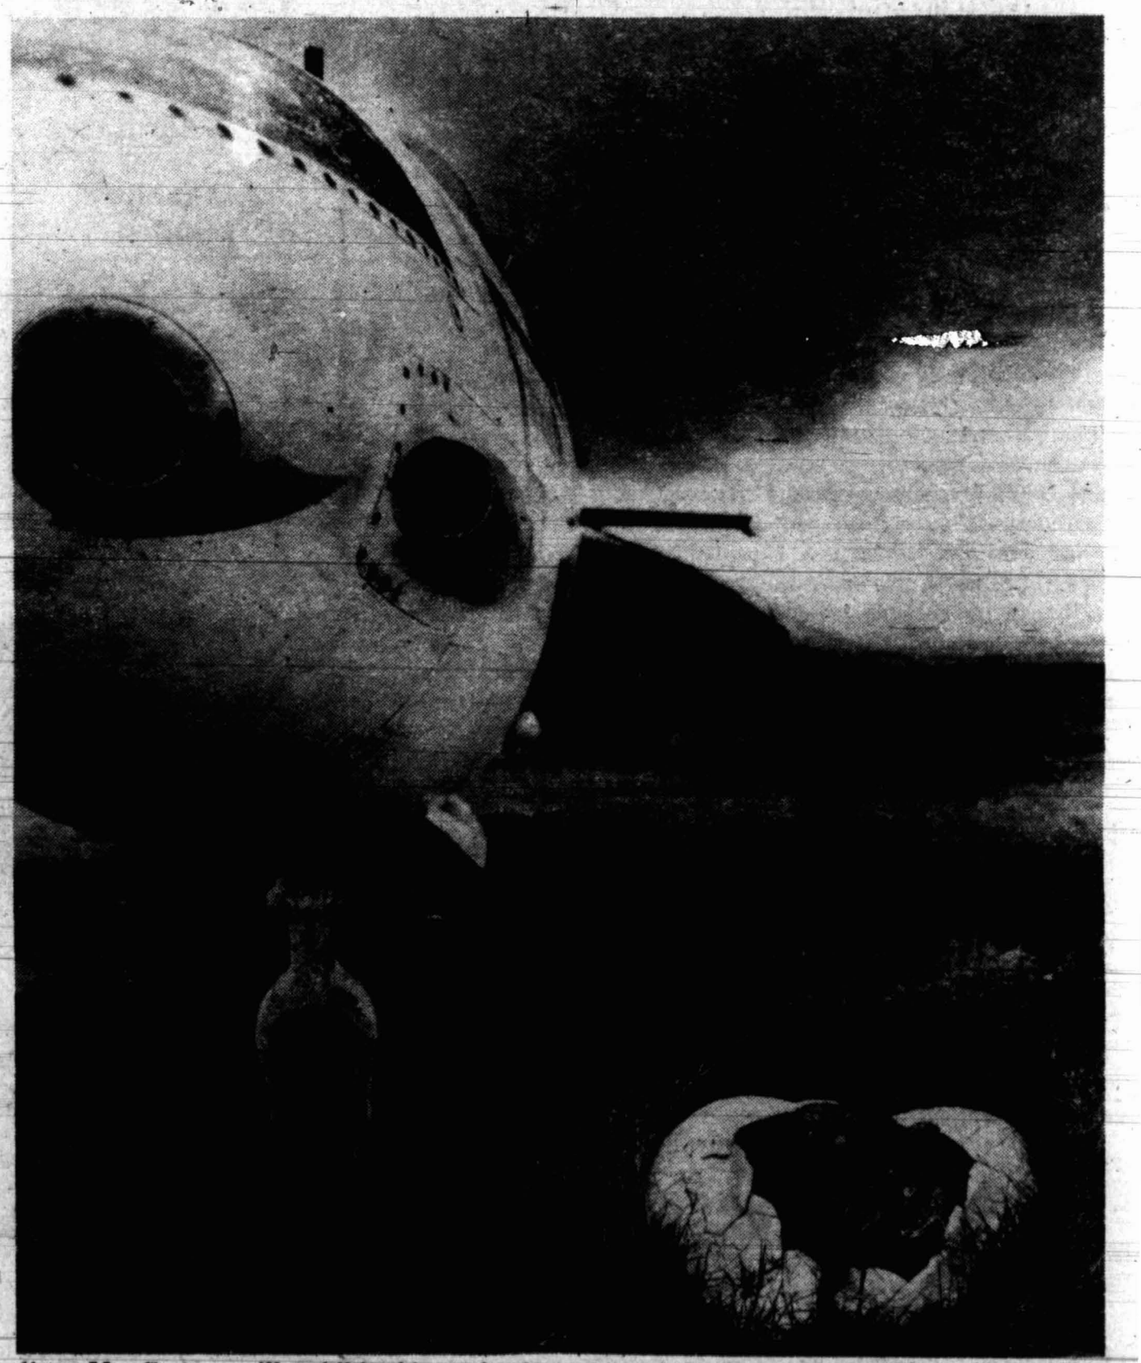
An exhibition and book signing opening will take place at the Friends of Photography Gallery, on Sept. 12 from 8 to 10 p.m. The exhibition will be on view from Sept. 13 through Oct. 19, at the Sunset Center Gallery.

The photographic prints of Mark Citret, Hans Levi, Greg MacGregor and Ted Organ, all graduates of San Francisco State University, will provide a contrast of viewpoints on the photographic image. Although, all four students studied under Jack Welpott and Don Worth, there is a definite individuality in each of the artists work.

Mark Citret entered San Francisco State in the Fall of 1968, with every prospect of becoming a writer or basketball player. He developed an interest in photography that summer and continued to study and graduated in 1973, with a degree in art. His development brought him to Halcott Center, New York, a farm falley in the Catskill mountains. His work has continued in Halcott, with the intent of doing a book of photography on the area.

Hans Levi, published a book called "Street Jesus," Scrimshaw Press, several years ago and will be at the opening for book signing. His book received national acclaim and was received by the critics as an important documentation of religious movement that has taken place in Berkeley and the campus of University of California. Levi finished his masters degree in Art at San Francisco State, and has taught at Washington University in St. Louis, California College of Arts



Greg MacGregor will exhibit this and other of his prints at the Friends of Photography gallery.

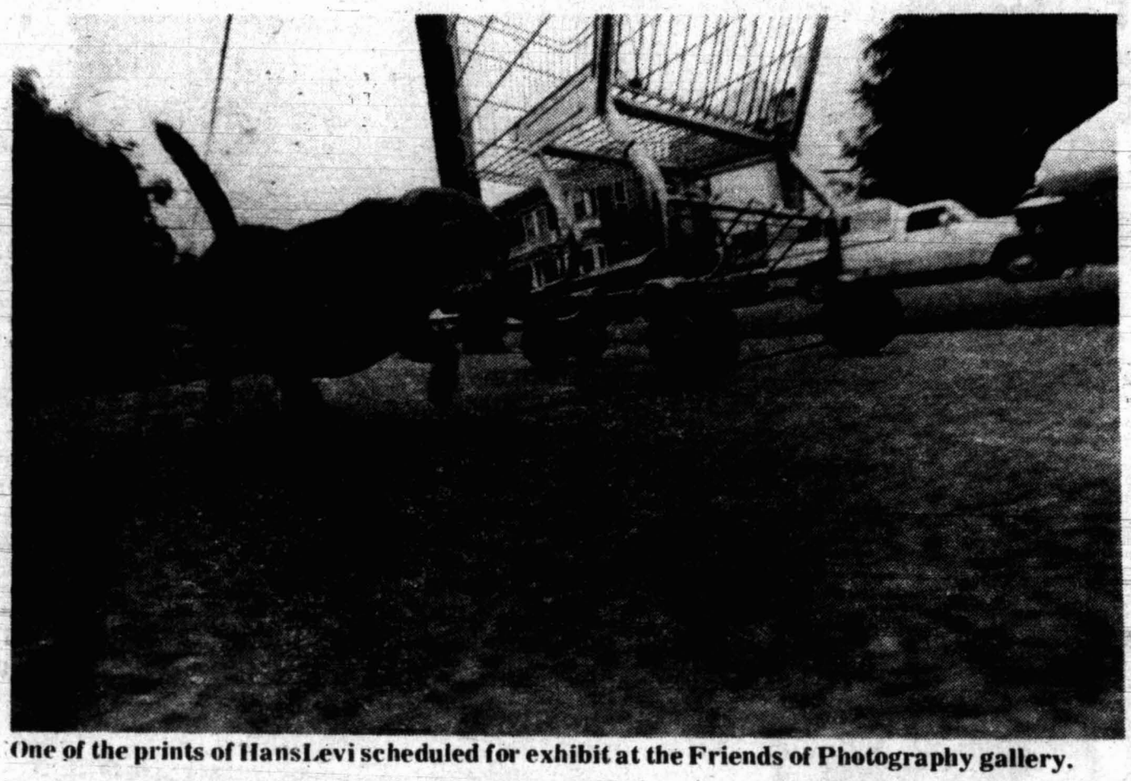
Greg MacGregor is also the publisher of and editor of a recent book called "Deus Ex Machina." The book deals with man's relationship with machine and his symbolic and surrealisitic ways of interpreting it. MacGregor is a scientist by educational background and as a degree in physics and art. MacGregor is teaching photography and physics at Lone Mountain college in San Francisco.

Ted Organ earned a graduate degree in interdisciplinary creative arts at San Francisco State University. His first photograph was taken in 1968, and in 1973 he became the founding member of a group of photographers called the Image Continuum. Presently, he is teaching photography at Cabrillo College, Monterey Peninsula College, and the University of California Santa Cruz Extension.

The public is invited to a preview of the exhibition, on Sept. 12 from 8 to 1 p.m. at the Friends of Photography Gallery, Sunset Center, Carmel. Gallery hours are from 1 to 5 p.m. Tuesday through Saturday.

An informal discussion, on Saturday Sept. 13, from 9 a.m. to 2 p.m., will follow the opening and be hosted by Morley Baer, photographer and trustee of the Friends of Photography. The artists present will be the exhibitors, Mark Citret, Hans Levi, Greg MacGregor, and Ted Organ. The discussion will revolve around the artists work and ideas. Members will be charged $10 and non-members $15 lunch included. For further information, call 624-6330.



One of the prints of HansLevi scheduled for exhibit at the Friends of Photography gallery.

"The Cedar Forest's Revenge!" by Ted Organ will be exhibited at the Friends of Photography gallery.

Y.S. Lim show at CAA

The Carmel Art Association is featuring a one-man show of paintings and sculptures by Y.S. Lim in the Beardsley Room through Oct. 1.

Yuan San Lim was born in South China in 1937 where his early talent for drawing and painting was first recognized and developed. He first came to the Monterey Peninsula in 1952; then continued his art instruction in Arizona, where he won three state-wide awards. He gained further knowledge and experience serving with the U.S. Army Engineers, then returned to Carmel to study for three years with artist and teacher John Cunningham.

Lim's paintings include a relatively large range of subjects and variations of techniques and approach while reflecting much of his own personality: oriental harmony and serenity on one hand and the vitality and contention of the west on the other.

He has exhibited in shows and galleries throughout the United States and his paintings are owned by many large corporations as well as private collectors of all classes and categories.

The Carmel Art Association Galleries, open daily 11 a.m. to 5 p.m., are located on the west side of Dolores between 5th and 6th.

CET registration due

The Children's Experimental Theatre announces registration for its 15th year of classes and productions at the Forest Theater - in - the - Ground, Santa Rita and Mountain View, Carmel.

Registration will be on two Saturdays, September 6 and 13, from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. Classes are offered for grades one through twelve, and are open to all youngsters on the Peninsula on a first-come, first-served basis. A limited number of scholarships may be applied for.

A whole generation of Monterey County children have grown up watching CET's Traveling Troupe touring productions of theatre "by children for children." Last year "Rapunzel," cosponsored by the Junior League, had five casts and gave 57 performances for about 15,000 students. CET is dedicated to live performance contact for audiences and to "doing, not merely watching" for its students. The year's work in theatre skills culminates in an original play for each age group in the spring.

For information concerning classes or the adult activities of the Staff Players, call Children's Experimental Theatre (624-1531) or director Marcia Gambrell Hovick at 375-3986.

P.G. Lighthouse to become museum

The Pacific Grove Museum of Natural History is seeking donations of period antiques to furnish the Point Pinos Lighthouse. The target dates are 1850-1870. Needed are furnishings for a parlor, kitchen and bedroom.

The U.S. Coast Guard recently automated the light at Point Pinos and signed an agreement with the City of Pacific Grove to care for the building and create period rooms for an historical museum.

The lighthouse building was completed in 1854 and after a delay of over a year, the light prisms arrived from France. It has shown continuously since September, 1855. It is the oldest continuously operating light on the Pacific Coast. Whale oil was its first energy source, followed by mineral oil, Kerosene, gas and electricity.

It is anticipated that restoration of the building and acquisition of period furnishings will be a slow process. People wishing to donate objects may contact the museum by telephoning 372-4212.

NPS plans fairy tale production

The Naval Postgraduate School (NPS) Little Theater will present Phyllis McCallum's "The Pale Pink Dragon" on Sept. 13-14 at 2 p.m. in King Hall on the NPS campus. Admission is 50 cents and tickets will be sold at the door. Director for this children's story is Susie Polk and producer is Jennifer Castner.

This colorful fairy tale revolves around Prince Hal's search for the lovely and kind Princess Pinkie. In order to prove himself worthy of her hand, he must slay the ugly dragon that has the kingdom of Caladar in turmoil. The problem is that the ugly dragon is really Pinkie, transformed under an evil spell cast by the Witch of the Forest. Will the spell be broken in time, or is Pinkie doomed?

The cast features Lesley Baskerville as Princess Pinkie and Scott Castner as Prince Hal. Other players are Cathy Gazarek, Howie Lewit, Gini Wicker, Jim Campbell, Thomas Keith, Derek Baskerville, Cari Johnson, Kim Bucher, Lori Burns, Jennifer Castner, Dennis Burns, Susan Bucher, Virginia Liday, Mike McCormick, Jimmy Bucher, Phaedra Polk, Kristen McCormick, Candice Johnson and Sheri Bucher.

Sunset Views:

By FRANK H. RILEY
Director, SCCC

"Jacques Brel is Alive and Well and Living in Paris" — well, actually it is not Paris really, it's Room No. 20 at Sunset Center where the Community Theatre performs this delightful musical evening. However, this is the last week of the run of this successful production by the local theatre group. Tonight (Thurs.), Friday, and Saturday, all at 8 p.m. completes the schedule. To get tickets call 624-2669 and they will be held for you at the door. Enter the Community Theatre on Mission Street, first door South of 8th.

With a promise of good things to come, the Monterey County Symphony begins regular rehearsals for the 1975-76 season on Monday evening with the first Sunset Center concert scheduled for Monday, October 6th. All Sunset Center Theatre seats have been sold on a season basis, but there are sometimes returns or other availabilities for individual concerts. Call Mrs. Beahan at 624-8511, you just might luck out.

Interested in weaving? The Weavers Division of the Carmel Crafts Guild meets at Sunset Center in Room No. 4 on Wednesday, the 10th, and on the second Wednesday of each month. Call Rocky Stevens 372-6895 to learn about how to join the group.

Wednesday, the 10th, is also the date for the start of the special film series sponsored jointly by Sunset Center and Monterey Peninsula College. Part of each of the ten Wednesday showings will present; "Western Civilisation: Majesty or Madness?" This is a new documentary of excellent quality produced with the use of the full resources and facilities of Columbia Pictures. The second part of each performance will consist of a segment of Dr. Jacob Bronowski's marvelous, "Ascent of Man" series. This, of course, has been shown on television but to see it again on the full-sized screen instead of on the tube will add greatly to both enjoyment and understanding. We believe that those who attend will feel amply rewarded — and the best news of all is that a ticket to all ten film showings cost only $5. (Tickets at the door for single performances will be $1.) Show time will be 8 p.m. on September 10, 24; October 8, 22; November 5, 19; December 3; January 7, 21; and February 4.

By this time both the Forest Theater Guild's "Taming of the Shrew" and the city of Carmel's Summer Sunday Afternoon Programs at the Forest Theater have concluded for the season. There is still another opportunity, however, to enjoy yet one more pleasant afternoon in the historic old theater. On Saturday, September 13th (next week) Joyce Hubbert, a Monterey dancer with a group of associates, will present an afternoon dance program at 2:15 p.m. The Forest Theater is on Mountain View at the corner of Santa Rita.

And since we are speaking of dance, let me remind you once more that we are still selling season tickets for our Carmel International Festival of Dance which will bring four top level shows of dance and entertainment to the Sunset Center Theater stage. From Tibet, the Lhamo Folk Theatre, commissioned by the Dalai Lama and performing the mystique and mythology of East Asia in elaborate traditional costumes. From Spain, Jose Molina Bailes Espanoles performing the traditional folk dances and flamenco of Spain with some of the grestest dancers, singers, and guitarists of that country. From behind the Iron Curtain comes The Polish Mime Ballet Theatre, created and directed by the renowed Henryk Tomaszewski, in a production of total theatre. And, finally, from Tahiti, the Royal Tahitian Dance Company, which is actually two companies combined into one. The Nahiti Bui Company, presenting beautiful girls resembling Gauguin models with their male partners performing the ancient love dances and stirring rituals; and the all-male Rorotongas, whose enthusiasm and dynamic teamwork stuns audiences with its precision and breathtaking pace. A season ticket provides admission to all four shows and represents a considerable saving over tickets bought separately for each performance. Many good seats are still available on the main floor, but each day there are fewer to choose from. The moral: ORDER EARLY.

Each month we publish a schedule of events taking place at Sunset Center. It is usually ready for distribution during the last week of each month and we would be pleased to have you stop by the office and pick one up to take home for ready reference.

A concert of fine dimensions

By DR. IRVING W. GREENBERG

The fifth and final concert of the Hidden Valley Music Seminars on Saturday, Aug 30, featured the conductor, Dr. Michael Zearott, as the piano soloist in the Ludwig van Beethoven's Piano Concerto No. 3 in C minor. Also on the program was a performance of J.S. Bach's Violin Concerto in E major, BWV 1042, with concertmaster, David Stenske, as the violin soloist, and the Johannes Brahms Symphony No. 3 in F major, Op. 90.

In the Beethoven Piano Concerto No. 3 in C minor, with Michael Zearott conducting the orchestra from the keyboard, the composer outgrew the model established by Mozart and began to assert his own original personality. In it, he endows the solo instrument with new breadth and dimension, while providing the orchestra with an altogether new symphonic scope. This work is marked by strokes of audacity and is permeated with an atmosphere of authority and conviction. The long, orchestral introduction, preceding the soloist's entrance was firmly and convincingly established by the unison strings of the orchestra, presenting the two main themes in a vivid manner — the first, strong and vigorous, and the second, pleasant and pastoral. These themes were handled with great rhythmic skill and melodic variety by the ensemble. Michael Zearrott then entered, taking the first theme as a point of departure, and making it elegant and graceful in his rendition by his incredible proficiency in the use of trills, runs, arpeggi, and further embellishments. The interplay between the soloist and the tutti was conceived with assurance, integrity, and mastery. The cadenza was displayed by Dr. Zearott as a brilliant extension of the movement, and not as an individual entity divorced from the main body, thus creating unity and harmonic purpose.

In the Largo, the pianist opened with a beautiful statement of a thoroughly romantic phrasing. The sweet and thoughtful period was further enhanced by Dr. Zearott's wonderful modulation, resulting in a second period of exultant tenderness. This long flowing melody by the pianist was answered by the orchestra with a distinctive assertive flair. The free improvisations by the pianist, accompanied vibrantly by the strings, and resulting in a dialogue between the flute and the bassoon, was full of incandescent tonal coloration. The romantic ardor of the movement was further vividly stated in a codal ending of singular beauty. The Rondo form of the Finale, in its gay, light, and carefree manner, was projected with unusual clarity in a performance by Dr. Zearott that had finely-attuned dynamics, exceptional phrasing, distinctive tonal brilliance, and interpretive authority. With the orchestral accompaniment in a fugato variation, both soloist and tutti brought the concerto to a magnificent close in a codal ending of almost Mozartian insousiance.

The J.S Bach Violin Concerto in E major, BWV 1042, with concertmaster, David Stenske as the violin soloist, symbolizes the zenith of human life. It is imbued with confidence, strength and happiness. David Stenske, in exposing the cheeful initial Allegro, seemed to be on an unusually sound foundation. He performed the fanfare-like triadic theme, acting as a germ motive throughout the whole movement, in an integrated manner full of evocative consistency. In the tender Adagio, he observed great emotional restraint so as not to oversentimentalize its nature. His cantilena complemented most excellently the oft-repeated bass line, by his characteristic and vibrant introduction of a mood of longing and nostalgia. The concluding Allegro, a completely unproblematic composition, was played in a dance-like rhythmic form, with lovely accentuated intonation and with a ravishly violinistic imperative. The orchestral tutti, conducted at times by the soloist, weaved in and out between the soloist's display, and gave to the total movement a firm foundation of structural fidelity and backbone solidity. Dr. Zearott assisted at the harpsichord.

The Brahms' Symphony No. 3 in F major, Op. 90, is the only one in which the composer makes use of an integrating motto theme: the three forceful chords for wind instruments with which the symphony opens. This motto recurs throughout the work, even if at times, only as transition material or as a background. With the violins exultingly displaying a sweeping descending melody, and the cellos and the basses providing the motto subject as a background, there was immediately established a continguous unity of expressive thematic development. Responsive playing by the various choirs of the orchestra, with especially emphatic pronouncements by the oboe, and the French horn, came through in a forceful and cognizant manner, with rhythmic and harmonic musical contours firmly delineated. In the Andante, the opening hymn in four-part harmony for the woodwinds, was asserted with a convincing lyrical expressiveness. In addition, the two sensual sections for the violins, were displayed in a most proficient and calculated manner. In the Romanza, the broodling main melody was ingratiatingly conceived with finesse, elegance, and articulated sentiment, by the cellos against a background of string arpeggi. The mysterious atmosphere that pervades the Finale was played with tonal distinction and in an aggressive declamatory manner, again, by the strings and the woodwinds. The agitated mood so established was interrupted by the cellos and the horns singing in a majestic and impetuous manner. The brass was also especially indicated here, thus giving an additional dimension of tonal weight. The symphony ended in the soft and virile resigned accents of the violins. Dr. Zearott conducted with his usual emphasis, dedication and conviction, resulting in a reading of magical luminiscence.

Thus ended, brillantly as it had begun, another concert series by the Hidden Valley Music Seminars Orchestra, that incredibly gifted ensemble of youthful musicians.

for Sunset Center Documentaries set

Two highly acclaimed documentary film series will be presented in a special combined program by Monterey Peninsula College Community Services and Carmel's Sunset Cultural Center.

The first segments of "Western Civilisation: Majesty or Madness?" and "The Ascent of Man" will be presented on Wednesday, Sept. 10 and continue weekly through February of next year.

Each program starts at 8 p.m. and consists of three parts. On the first program the Western Civilisation series topics will be "The Greeks: In Search of Meaning," and "The Romans: Life, Laughter and Law" and from the Ascent of Man series is the topic "The Harvest of the Seasons."

A special showing of the Western Civilisation series only will be presented at Hidden Valley Music Seminars in Carmel Valley on Sunday, Sept. 7, at 7:30 p.m. Admission to this special program is 50 cents, said Heinz Hubler.

"Western Civilisation: Majesty or Madness?" recreates the turning point of western culture by intersecting many disciplines.

Series tickets for all 10 of the Sunset Center programs can be purchased for $5 through MPC Community Services of Sunset Center. Individual admission to each of the programs is $1.

Action taken against Seaside, skateboards

An ordinance banning skateboards from the commercial district and a resolution opposing Seaside's unilateral withdrawal from an agreement with other cities in the county dealing with distribution of gas tax funds highlighted Tuesday's City Council meeting.

The ordinance banning skateboards from the commercial district came up as an emergency measure and takes effect immediately. The ordinance reflects a compromise reached by opposing forces on the council. As originally presented, the measure would have banned skateboards from city streets and sidewalks in the entire incorporated area of the city.

The council passed the ordinance unanimously, with the provision that it expire at midnight on March 1, 1976. The specific termination date, proposed by Councilman Mike Brown, is intended to allow a progress check on the effect of the ordinance and time for reevaluation of its necessity.

A similar measure was originally presented by Councilman Olof Dahlstrand earlier in the year and defeated by the council. The measure was presented again Tuesday at the behest of the police department.

Capt. William Ellis told the council he favored banning skateboards because of the potential danger to motorists, pedestrians and the skateboarders themselves. He indicated that other cities either had similar ordinances or were currently considering them. Ellis said while no series injuries had yet been reported, the potential was there and in the face of skateboarding's increasing popularity some regulation was necessary.

Councilman Gunnar Norberg suggested the ban would be "forbidding the next generation to do things no more dangerous than what we did as kids."

Councilman Brown said there is little for youngsters to do in Carmel now and he was opposed to restricting their recreational activities any further.

Councilman Florence Josselyn favored banning skateboards entirely because of the dangers skateboarding poses.

Mayor Bernard Anderson asked Ellis whether skateboards would fall under existing nuisance statutes and when told it would be difficult to apply nuisance statutes to skateboards, suggested the compromise measure. The original ordinance, banning skateboards entirely, was voted upon first and defeated 3-2 with Anderson, Brown and Norberg voting against it.

In 1970 the cities of Monterey County reached an agreement allowing Seaside to annex portions of Fort Ord with the provision that those portions annexed would have no effect upon the distribution of state gas tax funds (distribution is based on population.) The net effect of the agreement was to continue county wide distributuion of gas tax monies based on Fort Ord's population. City Administrator Hugh Bayless said gas tax funds received by Carmel based on the portions of Fort Ord annexed by Seaside amounted to about $1,400 annually.

Seaside recently took action to withdraw from the agreement reached in 1970. If this action stands, gas tax funds based on the annexed area and population would go directly to Seaside.

In reaction to Seaside's unilateral withdrawal from the agreement, the council received notification from the city attorney of Salinas suggesting possible litigation.

A resolution authorizing support of any litigation in the matter and opposing Seaside's action as a "serious breach of faith" was considered by the council.

The resolution as passed, however, was amended to read "the City of Carmel-by-the-Sea hereby affirms its strong opposition to this action of Seaside and joins other cities of Monterey County in seeking means to persuade the City of Seaside to reconsider its action." The resolution passed 4-1 with Councilman Brown dissenting.

The council adjourned its meeting close to midnight without taking action on several items listed on the agenda. An adjourned regular meeting has been scheduled for Tuesday, Sept. 16 at 8 p.m. in council chambers.

In other action the council:

--directed the city attorney to draft a resolution advocating an environmental impact report prior to any work on the Canada de la Segunda pipeline by Cal-Am.

--approved a cooperative street project with the Carmel Foundation for improvements on Lincoln at a cost to the city of $1,500.

--discussed a request from the John Roscelli Corporation for an increase in the garbage collection rates of 36.2 per cent, with action on the matter pending.

--continued action on the matter of continued membership in MOBAC and possible construction of an annex to the library.

Sunset equipment returned by thieves

Three thousand dollars worth of electronic equipment stolen Aug. 22 from Sunset Center auditorium was recovered when the young thieves attempted to return the property last Thursday, Aug. 28.

Stolen were a dimming system, microphone, and control packs. A bass fiddle was broken.

Cited was a 16-year-old Carmel boy who was released to a cousin on a juvenile promise to appear in court.

According to police reports, the boy and two friends had been at a party at 13th and San Antonio Friday night when they decided to go look for a piano to play. They thought they could enter an unlocked church but all had been drinking heavily and were unable to find the church.

They passed Sunset Center, noticed a crowd of people leaving the theatre and remembered there was piano inside. The Carmel boy entered the building to use the restroom and stayed inside until the building was locked. Then he opened a window and signaled his friend to join him.

An older friend, who reportedly has had a history of mental problems entered and tried to play the bass. The instrument fell and broke. When they were ready to leave they decided to take the electronic equipment.

The boys were apprehended when Sunset Center director Frank Riley noticed the boys trying to unload the equipment from a white pick-up and bring it back into the auditorium.

The nineteen-year-old accomplice was not cited because he has had a history of mental problems. His family has assumed responsibility for replacing the broken bass.

The rest of the returned equipment was intact and not damaged.

Carmelites win big at Fair

GIANT REDWOODS NEXT to the entrance to Pfeiffer State Park have recently been cut down due to damage they suffered during the flood two years ago. According to park officials, mud around the base of the trunks killed the trees and in their weakened condition they might easily topple over onto the highway. The matter was brought to the attention of the Carmel Planning Commission by commissioner Dorothea Roberts who asked why the trees had recently been cut.

EVA LJOSLAND

Eva likes what she sees

Carmel's American Field Service exchange school student experienced her first day in an American high school on Tuesday. She is Eva Ljosland, 17, of Lier, Norway.

Eva will spend a year in Carmel taking a variety of classes at Carmel High School. She is living with Mr. and Mrs. Kirk Hiaasen and their son Eric of Carmel.

Eva said the Carmel landscape and climate is very different from that to which she is accustomed but added "I'm quite sure I like it!" Ironically, Norway is suffering a heat wave these days that has driven temperatures up to 95 degrees, the highest they've been in over a hundred years, while Eva is shivering in the fog in "sunny California."

School in Norway is very different from the public schools in America.

"Secondary education in Norway is voluntary. I chose to attend academic school which lasts three years. In the academic schools we choose a track and mine is natural science," she explained.

Last year in Drammen where Eva went to school she studied chemistry, biology, physics, mathematics, English, French, history and religion. She also took classes in physical education and music. School meant between four and five hours of homework each night.

Her hobbies include sewing and cross-country skiing. She is also a Girl Scout leader.

Eva's parents attended the University of Minnesota and her brother attended school in Nebraska for a year as an AFS student. Eva has studied English in school for seven years and speaks it fluently.

Throughout the year she will be "just part of the family." She will participate in AFS get-togethers and is looking forward to a trip to Disneyland with her host family.

AFS STUDENT EVA LJOSLAND and host mother, Mrs. Kirk Hiaasen of Carmel.

PARTY PLANS

Recipes with a clever new twist

By PHYLLIS JERVEY

It took quite a bit of planning over the long Labor Day weekend to make it laborless and fun. Cooking should be a labor of love and painless throughout the years. Although it brought the last of vacation entertaining with young people returning to classes, meals still had to be planned, shopped for, cooked and served to please one's family and guests (the latter often unexpected). We learned a great deal on how to manage even difficult situations. The hostess we admire has a good sense of organization. A do-aheader, she writes out menus for all meals involved, makes up shopping lists as she goes along and does as much advance food preparation as possible. She has the ability to turn out festive dishes with seeming effortlessness as she relies on today's convenience foods for short-cuts.

We are always on the prowl for recipes with a clever new twist such as a Tomato Cream Cooler: Combine two-thirds part tomato or V-8 juices and one-third part yogurt, season to taste with salt, freshly ground pepper and lemon juice. Stir and top with chopped chives. Well-tested and found delightful is this elusively flavored soup, planned for advance preparation with service on patio or indoors.

Spindrift Soup: Remove heavy stems from one bunch watercress; wash well. Pare, seed and cut up 2 young cucumbers, skin left on. Dissolve instant chicken broth mix (3 envelopes in 2 cups boiling water), 1 pint, each, cream & milk. Puree chopped watercress stems and leaves with cucumber in electric blender with ½ cup chicken broth. Add rest of cream and milk. Season with salt and white pepper. Add dry sherry to taste. Chill. Makes 8 servings and will keep refrigerated several days.

How about a Baked Alaska Meat Loaf for the main dish. It is a glorified ground beef dish baked in an ordinary ovenproof round mixing bowl, "frosted" with instant mashed potatoes. An envelope of dry onion soup mix is what makes for flavor. Preheat oven to 375 F. In the 2-qt. baking dish, described above, combine onion soup, mix with 2 eggs, ½ cup ketchup, ¾ cup warm water and 1½ cups soft bread crumbs with 2½ lbs. ground round beef mixing well. Pack meat mixture in bowl and bake one hour. Remove from oven. Drain drippings, invert bowl onto cookie sheet then whip 3 cups cooked mashed potatoes with ¼ cup hot milk and one egg, slightly beaten with fork, and 1 Tbsp. prepared Dijon mustard. Spread this over entire meat loaf. Increase oven to 450 F. Bake until topping is golden and puffy. Serve on round heated platter. Surround with cooked frozen peas and lemon-glazed baby carrots. A tempting salad of finger broken fresh spinach and crisp broiled bacon with cherry tomato halves, dressed with your favorite bottled variety, adds vitamins plus glamour. Sesame bread sticks are used instead of bread and butter.

Walnut halves, dipped into melted butter, lightly heated

Medical motels

Recently I hurt my foot on the job. My employer, having informed me that I was covered by Workman's Compensation, sent me to the nearest medical-dental building for treatment. As I was assured that it wouldn't cost me anything, the only way that I could be persuaded to go, I allowed my scruples to be overcome. I am one of these persons who freely admits that he does not benefit from modern medical practice where the cost vastly outweighs the care. It's no use putting you back on your feet, if you have to work twice as hard to stay on them — to pay the doctor's bills. Having overcome my reluctance, I limped into the local curative center for housemaid's knee, erysipelas, the mange, and prickly heat. You, dear reader, would recognize the building. It's like a motel without a swimming pool. Following the maze of doctors' shingles, I presented myself at the appropriate office. I tapped the closed glass window to announce myself as one of the infirm, sick and needy. The window snapped open and a fresh young nurse popped out like a Jack-in-the-Box and without waiting to hear me describe my injury, handed me a form to fill out. Ah, Ithought, here is a chance to tell the puzzled physician what ails me. But no, the form only listed a series of, irrelevant, and indeed impertinent questions, whose inanity aroused my worst instincts and Puckish sense of humor.

Under the heading SEX, I wrote, occasionally; under DRINKING HABITS, I answered that I drank only because I was born where it was mandatory to drink Scotch, shoot haggis and wear a kilt; under DO YOU BELCH AFTER MEALS? that I belched only after the most satisfying of meals and never on Sundays; under DID I FIND IT HARD TO GET UP IN THE MORNING? I left blank on the grounds that my answer would tend to incriminate me; and under FATHER'S NAME, I wrote Sidney, as he had a floating kidney. By the time it came to giving my own name, I allowed my perversity full rein for I signed myself FRANK N. STEIN.

The nurse flicked through my answers with a clinical eye and without any sign of discomposure. Whereupon she marched me through a corridor connecting a number of waiting rooms, whose function in the interests of ~~good medical mass production~~, was to allow the doctor to dart from one to the other without wasting one iota of his healing or diagnostic powers in transit.

I was deposited in a kind of medical mortuary with a long table, a solitary chair, a cabinet of instruments and a mirror above a small sink, and told to strip to my shorts. Before I could tell this Cerebus of Sunnybrook Spa that it was my foot that hurt, she handed me an empty bottle and requested that I fill it with something I hadn't been asked for since my draft board.

I reluctantly removed my shirt, tie, and jacket and waited — and waited. Nothing happened. The assembly line, I gathered, was still some rooms away. So, to relieve my boredom, I began practicing sexy looks in front of the mirror but they only had the effect of arousing my libido, so I desisted sharply before Miss Bed Pan returned and caught me in some embarrassment.

Still nobody came. To pass the time, I took my fountain pen, filled with green ink, and levered its contents into the empty bottle, and topping it with water from the tap, I shook it until it became positively bilious in color, and placed it back on the shelf.

Finally the doctor made his entrance with a uniformed ninny, who bore off my bottle, hodling it aloft in triumph like Hebe, the water carrier of the Gods, unaware that my cup was full and running over and would defy pharmacopoeial analysis. At last, I though, here was someone to whome I could describe my spavined symptoms. No chance. With a brisk good morning, he, in turn, looked into my eyes, examined my tongue, and counted my pulse before I could utter, "It's my foot, doc."

Barely halting in his stride, he leaned over my foot, scrutinized and poked at it somewhat distastefully, and said, "Hurt's when I do this, does it? We'd better have it X-rayed." and with that he zipped out and into the motel room next door before I could stop and inform him that he had been examining the wrong foot.

I had just finished putting my clothes on as I was shivering with cold when another mini-skirted minion bustled in and told me to take them off again. She stood there until I was again down to my shorts and goose pimples. Then she had me on the table, taking X-rays like mad, the electricity of her charges causing my goose pimples to pop.

Before I could tell her that she had photographed the wrong leg, she was gone and Hebe has returned with my sample bottle analysed and ordered me to remain unveiled until my diagnosis was completed. Some minutes later the mad doctor whizzed back in. Taking the bottle from his assistant and holding it at arm's length, he informed me that the lab report showed that I was in the last stages of diabetes and that I should come back on Monday for further tests.

Blue with cold, and sneezing mightily, I was in no mood to be caught once more in that assembly line of apothecaries. I only wanted to put as much distance between Dr. Crippen and myself as possible. So, ignoring the pain, I jumped into my clothes and RAN for the exit like in one of those old Vincent Price horror movies. And as I made my escape, I breathed threats of malpractice, Hippocratic oaths and the curse of FRANK N. STEIN on all medical motels.

Annual used book sale scheduled

Friends of the Harrison Memorial Library have set the dates (Oct. 17, 18) for the sixth annual used book sale. The sale will be held at the Carmel Masonic Temple between Seventh and Eighth streets on Lincoln from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. both days.

Adm. Edwin Layton will serve as chairman of the book sale, chairpersons of the various committees are: Mrs. Leighton Phillips, Mrs. Van King, Mrs. Sydney Crane. Mrs. Ronnie Gaasch will handle publicity.

Persons wishing to donate books may leave them at the main desk of the Harrison Memorial library, Ocean and Lincoln in Carmel or call the library 624-4629 for pick up.

Admiral Layton says, "We can also use your paperbacks, sheet music, records, prints and paints and contributors will earn a tax deduction."

Director George duBets will provide instruction in calisthenics, body toning, and necessary exercises for weight control. Participants will be required to wear appropriate gym clothing and may bring their own personal exercise mats. Those interested may call duBets at Sunset gym, 624-0535, after 5:30 p.m. for prior enrollment information. The first session will start Tuesday, Sept. 9.

CHURCH RECITAL

Baritone Douglas Baker of Pacific Grove will appear in a recital Sunday evening, Sept. 7, at the Church of the Wayfarer in Carmel in Fellowship Hall at 7:30 p.m. This singer is leaving soon to study in Vienna. He will present a program of songs by Handel, Schubert, Beethoven, Bernstein, and other contemporary composers. Baker will be accompanied by Judy Storss of Carmel who has a master's degree in accompanying and chamber music from Dominican College in San Rafael. The public is invited.

MONTEREY PENINSULA STROKE CLUB

Meetings on the third Thursday of every month starting Sept. 18 at The Neighborhood Center, on the corner of Lighthouse and Dickman, across from Consuelo's Restaurant and the Social Security Office in New Monterey. Club membership is for stroke victims, their families and friends. No fees or dues. There will be professional people available to teach rehabilitation and help people learn to be independent. For information call Sue Roper RN at 373-2731.

COASTAL AREA LECTURE

Frank D. Gore, a registered professional engineer, now residing in the Monterey Bay area, will present an illustrated lecture on the coastal area between Monterey and Point Sur at the monthly noon luncheon meeting of the Peninsula Branch of the Sons in Retirement, Thursday, Sept. 11. The meeting will be held at the Monterey Elks Club, 150 Mar Vista Drive, Monterey. His talk will be based upon the inspiration of the book, STEINBECK COUNTRY, and its relation to this coastal area.

HADASSAH

There will be a Hadassah membership luncheon Sept. 9 at 12:30 p.m. at the United Methodist Church of Monterey.

AUDUBON SOCIETY

The first fall general meeting of the Monterey Peninsula Audubon Society will be held Sept. 11 at 8 p.m. in the Canterbury Woods Auditorium, 651 Sinex Ave., Pacific Grove. A slide lecture on "The Broad-winged Hawk" will be presented by Paul Matray, biology teacher at Robert Louis Stevenson School.

WOMAN'S CLUB

New members of the Carmel Woman's Club will be honored by the board of directors at a coffee hour Sept. 29 at 10:30 a.m. at the Clubhouse. Welcoming the new members will be Mrs. Donald C. Fenton, president, and Mrs. I. Norman Downer, first vice-president.

ZONTA CLUB

The Zonta Club of the Monterey Peninsula will hold its monthly dinner meeting Tuesday, Sept. 16 at the Casa Munras Hotel, Monterey, Social hour at 6:30, dinner at 7:30 p.m. Mrs. Lila Teninga and her "Z Club" committee will conduct the meeting. Z Club members from Monterey High have been invited to attend. Guests of the evening will be Gary and Clarice Morano, directors of "Insight Unlimited, Inc.", who will present an audio visual program on their work with totally blind children at their center in Salinas. The Moranos started this nonprofit organization for blind children over 12 years ago and have seen their venture grow to centers in Santa Barbara and San Luis Obispo.

HALF ARABIAN HORSE SHOW

Champions from all over the western states will compete in the Pacific Slopes Championship classes at the Half Arabian Horse Show to be held Sept. 6 and 7 at the Monterey Fairgrounds. A Half Arabian horse is sired by an Arabian stallion out of a mare of any other breed so there is a great variety of color, size and skills. These shows are noted for their action and beautiful horses, especially popular is the native costume class. Some of the highlights of the show will be the Arabian Stallion Parade, Parade of Champions, and the Private Treaty Sales. The Monterey Show will benefit the Greater Monterey Bay Area Chapter of the National Multiple Sclerosis Society. Saturday and Sunday morning shows are free. Admission will be charged at the Saturday shows at 1:30 p.m. and 7:30 p.m. and Sunday at 1:30 p.m. General admission $2.50, children $1.50, box seats $5 and full box is $25.00. For more information call 724-3593 or 663-2539.

VOLUNTEERS NEEDED

The Monterey County Suicide Prevention Center is seeking volunteers to enlarge their staff of telephone counselors. Applicants accepted by an interview committee or registered through Monterey Peninsula College will meet for instruction every Monday and Thursday evening beginning Monday, Sept. 29 and terminating Nov. 10. A 24-hour telephone service is maintained to receive calls from the despondent and troubled and to suggest appropriate alternatives to suicide. This includes referral to social welfare, religious and medical specialists, as circumstances indicate. Such volunteers are asked to give a minimum of four hours a week. Applicants may obtain details by calling 373-0713 or 373-6363.

CHS coaches optimistic about season

By ART BLACK, JR.

Both Varsity coach Jason Harbert and JV coach Frank Lynch are optimistic about this year's teams at Carmel High School. Jason Harbert, citing his 3-3 record in league games last season, reported that the varsity should have a better season than last year. Harbert said this year's varsity team has more returning lettermen, more depth, more size, and more experience than it did last year, and that if the coaching staff gets all the ingredients put together, Carmel will have a good football team.

There are 14 returning varsity lettermen. Among them are five returning starters on both the offensive and defensive squads: Ed Canadas, Thayne Taylor, Mike Irwin, Rick Parker, and Jon Anderson. Further, Dan McLeod and Al Lawrence-Toombs are returning defensive players, and Willie Fekeci and Brent Baysinger are two returning offensive men. There are five other returning varsity players: David Hare, Brent Wilkinson, Mike Criscola, Moe Lawitzke, and Jim Burdick. Up from the JV team this year are Bob Pollard, Marty Tracey, Greg Miller, Jim Marsh, Bob Jinishian, Jay Whitehead, Rick Palmer, and Tim Johnson.

Harbert said this combination of linemen, both returnees and players up from the JV, have given the varsity good size and good depth in the line, and should give the coaches an opportunity to do some platooning.

In the backfield, the team should be strong with fullback Ed Canadas, a strong runner who doesn't fumble, in the Woody Hayes mold. He will be backed by Kelly Ragan, a 185-lb junior, and Ted Saunders, a 180-lb. sophomore. At wide receiver, the team should have good speed with returning starter Rick Parker, backed by junior Kevin Murphy and junior Dan Sturges.

Harbert is particularly optomistic about the kicking game this year with juniors Kelly Ragan and Guy duBets, who both performed well in the inter-squad Red-Gray scrimmage last Saturday. In fact, the only glaring weakness the coaches have noticed, especially in the Red-Gray scrimmage, is the Padre offense, which Harbert characterized as big but slow. He said he and his staff would be focusing on the offense this week in practice and before the first game, Saturday, Sept. 13 against Woodrow Wilson High School of San Francisco.

Harbert summed up his general impressions of the varsity team: "Our defense looks like it's going to be solid,... we'll have a good kicking game, but right now our offense looks big and slow. We've got to try to quicken up the offense. The big weakness is offense, and that's what we'll be working on in the next two weeks. We should have a better overall record than last season and do better in league than our 3-3 mark last year."

The varsity will divide its offense into two units in the line and three backfield units for the Pacific Grove Jamboree tomorrow night. First unit line is Greg Miller (C), Brent Wilkinson and Mike Irwin (G), Thayne Taylor and Brent Baysinger (T), Bob Pollard (TE), and Rick Parker (SE). Second unit line is Bob Jinishian (C), Mike Criscola and Jim Marsh (G), Jay Whitehead and Rick Palmer (T), Steve Burdick (TE), and Kevin Murphy (SE).

In the varsity backfield, first unit will be QB David Hare, halfbacks John Anderson and Steve Sepersky, and fullback Al Lawrence-Toombs. Second unit backs will consist of QB Mike Harbert, halfbacks Willie Fekeci and Mike Scalise, and fullback Kelly Ragan. In the third offensive back unit, Guy duBets will quarterback, with halfbacks Kevin King and Greg Jensen and fullback Ted Saunders.

Junior Varsity coach Frank Lynch was openly enthusiastic about this year's team. After the Red-Gray scrimmage last Saturday, the players appeared to be in better physical condition, and are now ready for competition, whereas last year, according to Lynch, the team was about a week behind. Lynch was most pleased with the fact that this year they have the key position of quarterback filled already, as opposed to last year when they were still looking for a quartback well into the season.

The quarterbacks scheduled for the two offensive units at the Pacific Grove Jamboree this Friday afternoon are Frank Lucido and Jeff Lee. Lynch has divided the offense for the Jamboree into two units. Behind QB Frank Lucido in the first unit are Bruce Crane at fullback, Bob Ingram at tailback, Dan Rudolph at wingback, and Craig Parker at split end. In the first unit line is Scott Johnson at center, Clinton Wilson and Mark Porch at guards, Jeff Dahlgren and Jud Boone at tackles, and Tony Scardina at tight end. In the second offensive unit, Jeff Lee at QB, Joe Cate at fullback, Peter Rolfing at tailback, Lee Geiger at wingback, and Jim Irwin at split end. In the second unit line are Jeff Dahlgren at center, Craig Eisenberg and Mike Topham, guards, Ed Noble and Mike Goodhue, tackles, and Derk Sutton, tight end.

Lynch explained the division into units: "In the Jamboree, we'll run the two complete offensive units, one for two 15-minute quarters, the other for the other two quarters, and it's our intention this year, at least in pre-league games, to put in a different offensive unit every time we have possession of the ball. We have close to a 50-man roster, and we want to play everyone as much as possible."

The Pacific Grove Jamboree, with Carmel, Marello (Santa Cruz) and Pacific Grove participating, begins at 4:30 this Friday evening at the PG High School.

MEYER

Dr. Adolph A. Meyer, 81 of Pebble Beach, died Aug. 27 at Beverly Manor Convalescent Hospital after a short illness. He had been an area resident since 1956, when he retired from private practice as a dentist.

Born Dec. 16, 1893 in Oakdale, Dr. Meyer was a graduate of the Physicians and Surgeons College of San Francisco and practiced as a dentist for 40 years in Modesto.

A veteran of World War I, he was an active sportsman and a member of the Hollister Gun Club, and the Monterey Peninsula Country Club after his retirement to the peninsula.

Survivors include: His wife, Mrs. Marjory Meyer of Pebble Beach; a daughter, Mrs Howard Siegel of San Jose; a brother, William Meyer of Oakdale; two grandchildren; one great-grandchild.

Private services were held Friday in Pacific Grove with the Rev. Deane Hendricks of Carmel Presbyterian Church officiating. Private burial followed at Acadia Cemetery in Modesto.

LINK

William Nelson Link, 75, of Salinas, the father of Kathleen Ophaug of Carmel, died Aug. 27 at Community Hospital following an extended illness.

Born June 2, 1900 in Winnipeg, Canada, Mr. Link was a resident of Salinas for the past 11 years, following operation of the Coca Cola Bottling Co. plant in Albert Lea, Minn.

He was a member of St. Paul Episcopal Church in Salinas, Redlands Lodge 300 AF & AM, and a former member of the Elks Lodge in Albert Lea.

Survivors in addition to his daughter include: His wife, Mrs. Julia Link of Salinas; two sisters, Ida Darnell of Ottawa and Lillian Rigg of Montreal, Canada; a cousin, Edith Sanderson of Carmel; two grandchildren and three-great-grandchildren.

Inurnment was at the Monterey City Cemetery on Saturday. Memorial contribution are suggested to the Community Hospital Cancer Fund, Box HH, Carmel.

SWANEY

Private cremation services have been held fro William Dexter-Swaney, 70, who died Aug. 31 after a brief illness at his Pebble Beach home.

Advertising manager for Seventeen Magazine for 20 years, he had been a Peninsula resident since 1966. His wife, Elizabeth, survives at their Arrowhead Road hom.

WISE

Funeral services were held Sept. 3 for Raymond John Wise, 61 who died Aug. 31 at his Carmel home after a period of failing health.

A resident of Carmel the past seven years, he was a machine designer with Lockwood Technical Inc. of Sand City.

Curvivors include: His wife, Mrs. Viola Wise of Carmel; three daughters, Mrs. Sandra Taylor of Hawaii, Judith Wise of Sunnyvale, and Mrs. Mary Follett of Cupertino; a sister, Dorothy Wise of New York City, and four grandchildren.

Memorial contributions have been suggested to Community Hospital.

then sprinkled with curry powder are eaten out of hand with polished red apples for dessert. While your oven is on it would be a good idea to bake some ears of corn especially if you can still find the tenderest kernels. Husk and remove silk. Wrap in double duty foil and bake until ready. Keep hot. Pass butter, margarine, salt & pepper. We like a touch of sugar on the raw corn before wrapping in foil.

One of our favorite fruits is papaya. Often called the "tree melon," it is a tropical fruit imported for our pure pleasure. Originally cultivated by Aztecs and Mayas, we prefer them just plain, cut in halves, seeds removed, with salt to taste and a squeeze of fresh lime or lemon.

Lucky are we to have in the Carmel Rancho Shopping Center a new "Deli" for spur of the moment weekend picnics or patio gatherings. They have barbecued spit roasted chickens, all kinds of salads and breads, cheeses of course, and the works. It is called Garzone's. So why cook? Excepting that this column would be null and void without recipes. We hope those we have given will produce an aura of star dust plus practicability.

PRESTIGE HOMESITES

We are pleased to offer two perfect homesites in Pebble Beach, offering unsurpassed ocean views of Point Lobos and Carmel Bay. One lot is an acre and a half and the other just slightly smaller, with both having current building permits and water already installed. Situated at the end of Flavin Lane just below Sunridge, these prime building sites offer the ultimate in seclusion and privacy. Truly a location for a very-special residence, whether one or both lots are desired. Each lot is priced at $55,000.

PANORAMIC VIEW

This luxurious two-bedroom, two-bath Ocean Pines condominium offers all the amenities of a Carmel-Pebble Beach residence but none of the worries of upkeep. A discriminating owner has added many extras, including generous storage space. There's a truly special view—a panorama of treetops extending to Cypress Point and the coast. Offered at a most attractive price in today's market — $68,500.

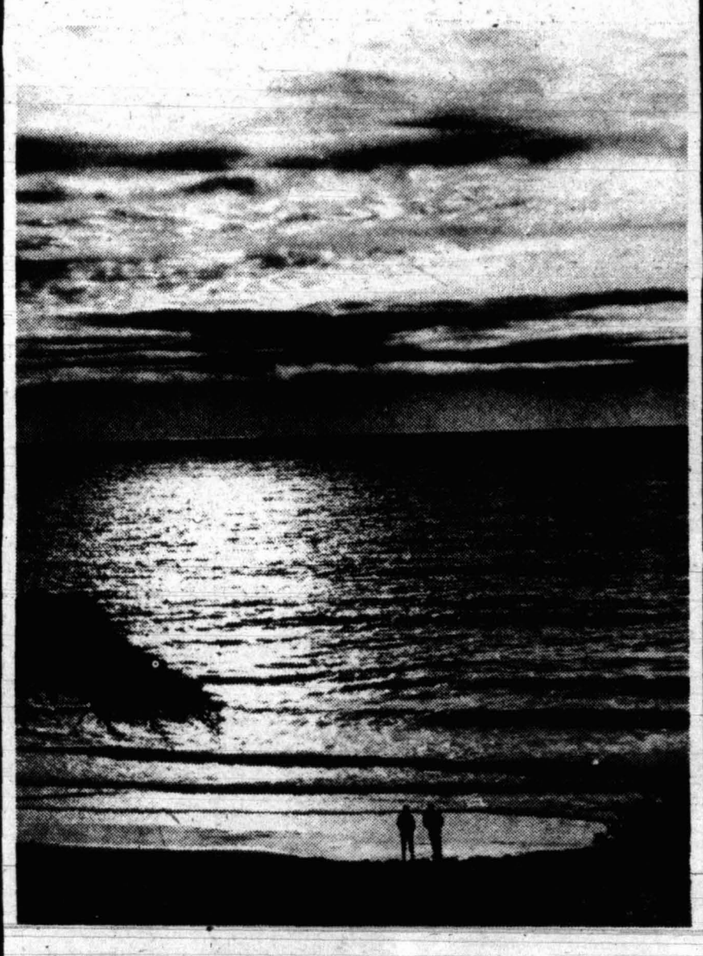
Lines from Lois

Whatever you promised, let this be the year you give her Carmel!



Give Her A Carmel Sunset,
... Sandpipers on the early morning beach ... the wonderful "clean" smell in the air ... 5,592 Monterey pine trees and 3,068 oak trees, 1,232 acacias and 490 cypress (inside the city limits). Give her bird songs in the morning and moonlight on the water and squirrels to feed and racoons to watch. Give her the white sand beaches, and time to walk on them, and a dog to walk on them with her.

And Give Her Quaint Shops
to browse and artists and craftsmen to provide delightful things to look at, and a public library with a fireplace which is USED ... fascinating people from all over the world for her neighbors ... symphonies to hear and ballet to watch, or auto races, or golf matches, or dog or horse shows.

Let Her Have Pt. Lobos
and lots of live theater and seven o'clock in the morning at Fisherman's Wharf in Monterey. Let her have the cool mist of the beaches or the sunshine of the Valley. Let her take the classes in anything she wants to learn from Greek to sculpturing.

Expense?
Most of it is free unless you buy a fish from the wharf markets or things in the shops. (If she acts or works in production, she can have free tickets to most everything in the theater line). (An the dog is waiting at the animal shelter.)

It's All Part of the Good Life
in the Carmel area. As to where you'll live, we have homes priced from $50,000 on up. We have homes in the sunshine and homes in the shade, on the rocky coast, in the forest, up on the hills and down in the valleys — all of them accompanied by all of the above mostly free items. And if you can afford the very best, we have some of the finest Carriage Trade homes on the Pacific Coast. And beautiful, beautiful lots!
If You Left It Out Of Her Stocking Last Christmas, give her Carmel this year. May we help you?
